Dated at Denbigh, this 13th day of September,

"LAGER, ALES UND WINES."

Meaning of "L.A.W. Hotel" as Explained
by a Jersey City Man.

Among the many advantages set forth by the L.A.W. to induce to join the organization are the special accommodations extended to members at the official hotels in cities and towns. It is the custom in suburban places for proprietors of official hotels to display a sign like this, "L.A.W. Hotel," in some conspicuous place. Naturally riders travelling the official quarters, and as a co-sequence, the keepers of road houses and hotels in the country are hanging out
"L.A.W. Hotel" signs. The practice has been called to the attention of the league and its officers are trying to compel the non-official houses to remove the sign-boards. Complaint was made to the New Jersey division of the league that an hotel keeper on the outskirts of Jersey City not entitled to display the official sign of the L.A.W. was an offender. A visit to the place developed the fact the owner was not disposed to accede to the demands of the league representatives. The latter, finding that mild persuasion was futile, became indignant and threatened legal proceedings. The proprietor, a German, also waxed warm, and in response to the remark that he was using the official sign of the league without authority, retorted:
"Vot I know about votmen's legs.
Dot not sthand for noddings like dot.
Dot sign sthand for lager, ales, and wines hotel, abetty yet. Dot my leg, together."

The explanation amused the officials
so much that no legal move was taken.

A Cheap Foundation.

A CHEAP FOUNDATION.

tight foundation, for the sake of warmth in winter, but not at the expense of a cemented stone or brick foundation. The cut shows an excellent plan. Cedar posts are set where needed, then boarded up inside and out with matched cedar boards. This gives an air space between the boarding that will keep out the wind very effectively. The building can then be set upon the posts, the whole expense for foundation being small. Other wood that does not decay can be used if desired instead of the cedar. A window ought to be put into the foundation on either side, to be kept open in summer to air out the interior. In this way the inner boarding will be much less likely to decay.—N. Y. Tribune.

Raise Your Own Cows.

Usually the man has the better herd who raises his own calves. He knows the stock, and as they are at home, they will do their best when taken care
of. Raise your own cows.

A Change.

"My wife is very considerate of me," said the young married man. "She was afraid my rest was being interrupted too much, and last week she bought a burglar alarm."

"Yes, instead of getting up to see whether there are burglars in the house,
I get up to see whether the alarm is set."—Washington Star.

Home Catechism in Philadelphia.

A good many hundreds and even thousands of long-suffering husbands can bear sorrowful testimony to the fact that this is the sort of catechism the wives of their bosoms subject them to every time they put on their hats to go out in the evening:

"Where are you going?"
"Oh, I'm going out for a few minutes."
"Where?"
"Oh, nowhere in particular."
"What for?"
"Oh, nothing."
"Why do you go, then?"
"Well, I want to go; that's why."
"Do you have to go?"
"I don't know that I do."
"Why do you go, then?"
"Because."
"Because what?"
"Well, simply because."
"Going to be gone long?"
"No."
"How long?"
"I don't know."
"Anybody going with you?"
"No."
"Well, it's strange that you can't be content to stay at home a few minutes.
Don't be gone long, will you?"
"No."
"See that you don't."
This is one reason why so many marriages are a dead flat fizzle and failure.
—Philadelphia Times.

He Shows Just Cause.

The church was crowded with all the fashion and some of the wit of Sahara-hurst. The enviable couple stood before the multitude, being made one, and hemmed in by the bridesmaids and ushers beyond the possibility of escape. The solemn ceremony proceeded, interrupted only by the suppressed sobs of the bride's mother, until the minister pronounced the usually perfunctory formula:
"If any man can show just cause why they may not lawfully be joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter forever hold his peace," and was serenely proceeding, when—
"Yes, sir, please, sir, I do!" burst upon their astonished ears. The voice was sharp and shrill and broken by emotion, but the crack of doom could not more have startled us. Every eye was directed toward it, and we beheld a small boy in tears, a sailor suit, and struggling in his mother's arms.
"Y-yes, sir, please," he shrieked, "she—she promised to w-wait till I grew up and m-marry m-me!"

It Depended.

He—If you won't marry me, I'll go to the Alaska mines.
She—Well, then, I'll tell you when you return.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

When a woman isn't feeling sorry for somebody she is generally washing her hair.

A girl's idea of heaven is a place where her hair is always as wavy as it is when she first takes out her curl papers.

No man can feel sure that he could love only one woman till he has seen all there are.

A girl would a good deal better know what she oughtn't to say than to say what she oughtn't to know.

The world doesn't want to hear your troubles unless you can tell them so as to make it either laugh or cry.

Men love women because they're weak;
women love men because they'll work.

a lot of it by working a bluff."

ERINSVILLE.

On Sunday last the remains of Miss S.
McGuire were placed in the cemetery at Tamworth. We sincerely sympathize with friends in the loss they have sustained.
Farmers are busy finishing their harvest,
and report a good crop.
A large crowd attended the races at Tamworth on Wednesday and reported a fine time.
We are sorry to announce Mrs. Wm.
P'helan is on the sick list.
Mr. T. Powers is happy, it is a boy.
Mr. H. Mooney spent Sunday in the village.

are promptly cured by Burdock Pills.
Easy to take, sure in effect.

DENBIGH.

We have had excellent harvest weather lately and harvest operations are nearly completed for this season. Fall plowing and the sowing of fall grain has commenced and the threshing machines have again begun to hum.
A grand concert will be given by the members of Court Cedar Lake, No. 1547, of the I. O. F., on the evening of Wednesday, the 22nd inst., in the Orange Hall. The entertainment committee are getting up an excellent programme, and a very pleasant time may be expected.
A wedding party was given on Thursday evening last by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lane and a very pleasant evening was spent by those invited.

Baby was Cured. DEAR SIR,—I can highly recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. It cured my baby of diarrhoea after all other means failed, so I gave it great praise. It is excellent for all bowel complaints.

CENTREVILLE.

Corn cutting is about over, the crop being an immense one.
Buckwheat is also an excellent crop and is now being harvested.
A very heavy rain storm accompanied by thunder and lightning passed over here on Monday morning. As yet there are no reports of any damage being done.
Nearly all the cattle for sale here have been purchased and shipped to American markets.
The fairs are now the topic of conversation.
Hop picking finished on the 6th inst.
D. Perry, of Violet, and E. H. Perry are on a business tour in the back country.
Several young men in this vicinity intend leaving for the Klondike in the near future.

Providence Thanked. It is with pleasure that I recommend B.B.B. for the cure of indigestion and impure blood. I had tried many medicines but received no benefit until I took Providence. I was advised to use B.B.B. and it resulted in a perfect cure.

One of the Advantages Possessed By the Balder Twins.

The Balder twins are in evidence again, and one man is lying awake nights trying to think of a way to conciliate them. It was a put-up job against him, but he doesn't suspect it. He called at the apartment house where the family lived and asked in a disagreeable way to see "Young Balder."

The message was given to Harold, who went out into the hall and met a stranger, who, however, seemed to know him very well.

"Now, young sir," he began, "I want this bill settled. You've stood here for long enough, and I don't leave here for night until I've got the money or security as good as the money."

Harold Balder looked at the man without flinching.

"I never saw you in my life before," he said, with a haughty assumption of supreme indifference. "Will you be so explicit as to inform me what this bill is for?"

"Oh, then high and mighty airs won't go down with me. You owe me for a suit of clothes that you bought last spring, and I want my pay. And I want it now."

"And let me tell you right now that I never patronize a tailor that collects his own bills or sends them in under a year. You are mistaken in the person, my good man."

"Ain't your name Balder?"

"Certainly, but I never bought a suit of clothes from you."

"I've a great mind to thrash you, and I believe I'll just do it. You'll tell the truth and pay that bill, too, when I get through with you."

He had peeled off his coat and turned to clinch Harold, when he threw up his hands in astonishment. Eugene Balder, the other twin, had appeared on the scene, and as the two stood there side by side their own father and mother could not have told them apart.

"I've got 'em again," said the unhappy tailor, rubbing his hands across his eyes.

"Perhaps you have had some dealings with my twin brother," said Harold coolly.

"Why didn't you tell me you had a twin brother?"

"Why didn't you ask me? Now, Gene," turning to his brother, "I suppose this is the person you wanted me to patronize for my wedding suit? Well, my advice is that you pay him off and send him about his business, and I will give my patronage to some first-class establishment, where they don'tound a fellow to death for a few dollars."

"That's dead easy, Harold," said Eugene, "but the bank is closed and father has gone out for the evening."

"It's of no consequence; I'd rather you'd owe him not," gasped the creditor, "and any work you want done I will do it for the most reasonable price and wait your convenience. You see, I mixed you up with another family of the same name who do not pay their bills."

"We are the Balder twins; everybody knows us," said Harold promptly, "there can be no other family of the name."

"No; come to think of it, they were Smith. I hope you'll excuse me," said Harold, as he opened and closed the door after the retreating creditor. Then he looked at Eugene and winked.

"Thanks, awfully," said his twin, "that fellow had it in for me, didn't he?"

"Yes, but you can stand him off awhile longer. If he takes us singly it will be all right, but together we can't bluff him again. It won't work."

A Tall Denial.

Two little boys were quarrelling. One of them made a statement, to which the other hotly replied:

"That's a sixteen story lie, with a roof such an attachment!"

A passerby, appalled by the magnitude of the denunciation, stopped and said:

"My dear boy, where did you learn that awful expression?"

"Oh," said the little fellow, "I heard papa tell mamma it when she said he was out with the boys."

And the questioner—a married man—

Made a Good Substitute.

It was a hot night, and Mr. McSwat had been unable to sleep.

He came downstairs before anybody else was stirring, and went into the pantry with a dim idea of finding the necessary materials for getting his own breakfast.

A hasty inspection was not reassuring, and he went upstairs again for another wrestle with Morpheus.

An unusually loud yawn awakened Mrs. McSwat.

"What are you doing, Billiger?" she asked.

"Lobelia," he said with another dismal yawn, "what was your idea in covering that large cake in the pantry with a sheet of sticky fly paper?"

Mrs. McSwat sat bolt upright.

"What do you mean?" she demanded.

"Who says, put a sheet of fly paper on that cake?"

"I say it," he retorted. "I saw it myself not five minutes ago. Sticky fly paper. White. And covered with flies?"

"Covered with flies?"

"There wasn't room for another fly."

"Billiger!" shrieked Mrs. McSwat, "that isn't fly paper. It's the icing! I'll never making icing again by your mother's recipe as long as I live—so there! Talk to me about—"

But Billiger was half way down the stairs on the way to the barn to wait till the storm blew over.—Chicago Tribune.

Gluten or Bran and Gluten.

It is not possible to fix hard and fast values, relative or otherwise, for cattle foods. Foods of the same class may be compared on the basis of the relative quantities of digestible dry matter in 100 pounds, but this is not true of unlike foods. Gluten meal is a much more nitrogenous food than wheat bran, and so takes a different place in the ration. Besides, the term gluten meal is applied to materials varying all the way from 20 to 36 per cent. or more of protein. According to results so far reached, Buffalo gluten feed, which usually contains about 25 per cent of protein, is considerably more digestible than wheat bran, the proportion of digestible dry matter in the two being as 75 to 54. It is probably possible to purchase the manurial ingredients of a ton of wheat bran for about $8.50. Those of a ton of Buffalo gluten feed would cost, on the same basis, not more than $9.25. If gluten meal containing more nitrogen were purchased, the manurial value would be larger. The value of the manurial residue from these foods depends, in part, upon the class of animals to which they are fed.—Country Gentleman.

A LETTER FROM INDIA.

The Editor, NAPANEE EXPRESS, Napanee, Ont., Canada.

MY DEAR BRO, — You were kind enough to publish my last circular letter with reference to the famine and our general mission work. Will you kindly give this letter a place in your columns.

The Monsoon which usually begins about the third week in June, was delayed until the second week in July, and the out-look was grave. We feared a continuation of the famine during 1898, but I am glad to tell you that heavy rain has fallen, so that we have received in this part of India nearly twenty-four inches which is the normal rainfall to date. For several days we have had a break which enables the cultivators to finish sowing their fields. Government has made grants on seed-grain, ploughs, cattle and farming implements to the cultivators who have lost everything. I question whether there is another government existing that does so much for the people as the Indian Government. We hope for rain during August and September, and the Government Meteorological Reporter predicts favorably. The sufferings of the people from famine have been indescribable. About eighty millions are affected, and for several months Government was feeding nearly 4,000,000 daily, employing the able-bodied on relief works, and giving gratuitous help to the old and sick. I have visited a number of relief works, and am confident that a better arrangement could not have existed. The natives state that there has been a great deal of dishonesty on the part of native subordinates. Some state that twenty-five per cent has been embezzled. Without doubt there has been a large misappropriation of funds, but this is inevitable where natives handle money. Whenever a man has been caught in dishonesty, the government has made

THE OPPOSITION PROGRAM VIEWED FROM THE FARMER'S STANDPOINT.

DEAR EXPRESS—Now that the Leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature and his travelling troupe have first had their say to the people of Lennox and Addington will you allow me space for a few criticisms, from a farmer's standpoint? Intelligent farmers who went to their meetings on Thursday and gave them a careful hearing must have come away disappointed, if they expected any assurance of needed assistance in any such reforms as the tax-paying farmers of this county are greatly interested in.

Mr. Whitney and his companions in distress in the cold shades of the Opposition in our Provincial politics seem greatly distressed because the farmers and tax-payers' interests are not better guarded; they made a great many fair promises and assurances, but what did we see?

It has been a standing complaint for years past that our Legislature and Government have been too much in the hands of the lawyers and other similar professions, while the farmers whose interests are far more important in the Province than all the others combined are hardly respected at all. Of course the lawyers and their friends have looked out well for THEMSELVES under the circumstances.

When the wolves are selected to "guard the interests" of the sheep it causes no surprise if the wolves come out fat and sleek, and there are generally plenty of them willing to undertake the job. Mr. Whitney and his fellow leaders in the Conservative party have now been holding their meetings for weeks all over the country and pouring it in the ears of the farmers how anxious they all are to get into the Government fold—just to see that their interests are better protected. It turns out, however, that nearly every member of the pack is a well-known lawyer. Not a farmer is found among them, nor did they come to Lennox in the interests of the election of a farmer.

Here are some of the leading lights that have been with the troupe all over the country.

Mr. J. P. Whitney, Q.C., M.P.P., the leader, a well-known Morrisburgh lawyer of many years standing.

Col. Arthur J. Matheson, M.P.P., his lieutenant, a well-known Perth lawyer and the son of a lawyer.

Mr. John W. St. John, M.P.P., another lieutenant, a well-known Toronto lawyer.

Mr. Oliver A. Howland, M.P.P., another leading light, a well-known Toronto lawyer.

Andrew Miscampbell, M.P.P., of Midland, another leading light, a sort of lawyer and a sort of lumber merchant, I understand but not a farmer.

Dr. Willoughby, M.P.P., a well known village doctor, and race horse owner, of Colborne, but not a farmer.

And so it goes on to the end of the chapter, with lawyers galore and a sprinkling of doctors, like our own Tory member, but not a farmer among them. These are the men who now nominate and recommend THEMSELVES as the most fit and proper persons to administer the affairs and guard the interests of the farmers of Lennox and of all Ontario!

When the sheep get into the power of the wolves they are lucky to escape with the loss of their fleeces merely. The skin and the life-blood generally are relished, too. A lot of intelligent farmers, even in intelligent Lennox, seem anxious to elect a doctor hero to help place these lawyers in office. Have we not had enough of lawyer's rule already in Ontario? In consequence of this state of things how does a farmer and his farm fare now, if once dragged into court and subjected to the tender mercies of the lawyers fees and expenses? Do they wish this state of things continued or even made worse? Turn out the present Government, in word to say against this enormous and iniquitous bounty system? Not one word. The fact is Mr. Whitney and his whole party have all along supported that system. He stood up in his place in the House and congratulated the Hardy government when they added the steel bounties, and told them they were adopting such genuine protection principles as he had all the time contended for. The fact is too, that Dr. Meacham, claiming to represent the tax-payers of Lennox, steadily supported the present iron and steel bounties when they were being thus fastened on the tax-payers' necks.

OTHER REFORMS NEEDED.

The farmers interests demand other sweeping reforms. We want the $17,000 to $20,000 now being yearly paid our Lieut. Governor and his house expenses cut down to a figure such as may not be so burdensome to the country. Whitney and all his party, including Dr. Meacham, helped vote down any such proposal when made by the Patrons in the Legislature. We want to see the iniquitous railway free-pass system to the Members of the Legislature stopped. Whitney, St. John, Mathieson, Meacham and all their party united in helping defeat the Patrons on this reform. We want the extension of the jurisdiction of the Division Courts—the poor man's court—to a much larger extent, and its processes so simplified that a plain farmer can go and state his own case there and get as good justice and fair play just as he can now to the Doctor and state his own case and get a needed remedy. That will stop the necessity of being dragged off to some county town, or to Toronto, and employ a lot of expensive lawyers, often to his bankruptcy or ruin. Need we look for any such reform from a lot of lawyers who now live and grow fat out of farmer's litigations? Has Mr. Whitney or Dr. Meacham ever proposed any such needed reforms in the Legislature or on the platform? Never. We much need a reform in our present system of appointing Provincial officers and the reduction of their salaries and expenses. Such offices should not be parcelled out, as they now are, to the mere party hacks and heelers or to some of their families or favorite friends. Who ever heard of Whitney and his present travelling troop, or even of Dr. Meacham, as our representative, supporting any such needed reform?

The fact is these men now go about telling the same old story at every place about that Central Prison piggery, about the "tyranny" of the Minister of Education, about that terrible mining policy, that Forestry Commission and the like, but when it comes to the REALLY NEEDED reforms such as the electors of Lennox want and have long felt the need of they are as silent as dumb dogs. They have had years of opportunity to support these reforms in the Legislature and have never done it. Who expects they ever will?

The farmers have selected for years and years lawyers and doctors to represent their interests in the Legislature and we all know what has come out of it. Shall we go on repeating that folly?

The Napanee Express

NAPANEE, FRIDAY, SEPT. 17th 1897.

The question whether a hotelkeeper can dispense soft drinks on Sunday is being debated. If the worst comes to the worst the traveller can drink water, but the average man has a decided aversion to drinking water away from home.

The Patrons of Industry met in Toronto last week and an active campaign during the next Provincial election was decided upon. The Patrons are no longer a force in politics and it seems to us the effort to revive the movement is doomed to failure.

Among the latest rumors it is said that Sir Oliver Mowat will become Lieutenant Governor of Ontario and that Hon. David Mills will be appointed Minister of Justice. Sir Oliver's retirement to the Lieutenant Governorship of the Province, whose affairs he administered so long and well would be a fitting close to an honorable and active political career.

The Mail and Empire is fearfully and wonderfully edited these days. A short time ago it was assailing Mr. Laurier because he had granted a preference to Great Britain without receiving any favor in return. Now it is attacking him on the ground that no preference has been granted to Great Britain. The Mail and Empire is jumping from pillar to post in a manner that would be amusing if it was not so contemptible.

Is a wild attempt to score the Ontario Government the Mail and Empire draws attention to the fact that the Fort Erie Jockey Club imported a number of Pinkerton detectives to prevent fakers from fleeing innocent people during the progress of the meet. This the Mail characterizes as a direct stab at the Canadian police by the Government. We direct the Mail's attention to another flagrant outrage of the Government. A Pinkerton detective is at present in Napanee engaged in ferreting out the Dominion Bank robbery. We trust the Mail will hold the Government up to public execration for tolerating such a state of affairs. Let the Mail and Empire continue in the good work of exposing the wicked deeds of the Hardy Government. Home talent must be protected from the inroads of the Pinkertons even if fakers flourish and robbers go unwhipped of justice.

HE WONDERS WHY.

To the Editor of THE NAPANEE EXPRESS.

About four months ago a petition was circulated throughout the town asking the citizens to donate funds for the purchase of some instruments to form a Citizen's Band, a clause in that document intimating their intention of furnishing free weekly concerts.

Our band we may be justly proud of as the concerts which have been rendered have convinced the most skeptical of the vast improvement this organization has undergone during the past two months. We have had no open air concerts for three weeks.

Rumor says that Mr. Stevens the late director and some other members have resigned. Why? I cannot speak with authority on the matter, but must say Napanee cannot afford to lose such musicians and it behoves the management to see to it that all available musicians are kept in the ring, that we may still have a band second to none in Central Ontario.

Yours Truly,

dishonesty, the government has made an example of him by punishing him very severely, which only made the others more careful not to be caught. The loss of life has been great. Out of 500 children whom we have rescued 100 died after all the care we gave them. It was impossible to save all. The people would remain in their villages until they were forced by hunger to leave, and many preferred death to the poor houses notwithstanding the excellent arrangements. Many of the people were afraid to lose their caste, and had suspicions that their religion would be interfered with. The officials have spared no pains to try to save the people, and the loss to the government from this famine will exceed £8,000,000. It will be years before the country will recover.

India has been terribly afflicted this year from famine, plague, earthquake and riots. There is a feeling of unrest among the educated classes, and disaffection towards the government is known to exist widely, but the Indian Government is holding the country with a firm yet prudent hand. A number of leading editors of the native press are undergoing trial for sedition, and it is quite possible that the native press will be controlled in future. But the disaffection does not extend to the village population which is eighty per cent of the whole though in their ignorance they might be used as tools of the disaffected, educated men.

The riots among Mohammedans and Hindus in Calcutta were caused by a quarrel over a piece of property on which stood an old mosque which was bought by a Hindu. But instead of the rioters attacking Hindus, they attacked Europeans. The riots were soon quelled, and the ring-leaders have been punished. In Poona two European officers were shot on Jubilee night while returning from Government house. The perpetrators of the crime have not been found, the plot is supposed to be very deep.

The out-break of fanaticism among the tribes in the Swat Valley on the northern frontier was very unexpected. They were led by a mad Mohammedan priest who stirred fanaticism. Eight thousand British troops are now in the valley, and 3,000 tribesmen have lost their lives. The whole valley will be thoroughly subjugated.

The events of the year have greatly interfered with mission work. Hungry people do not care to listen to the gospel, they want bread. A crowd of fanatics and rioters are not good listeners, still the work has gone on quietly. The poor people have been convinced more than ever of the love of Christians to them shown by the help given them in their distress, and this seed must bring forth fruit. We have gone from village to village, from door to door, distributing help sent us by friends in England and America, and in this way have been able to get very near to the people in their trouble. Hundreds of orphans have been rescued and these will grow up intelligent Christians, in mission schools. For months to come the help of our friends in England and America will be needed to aid the people until better times come. Our special need at present is scholarships for famine orphans at $20 a year each, which may be sent to us direct, or by foreign post-office order, or bank draft.

Turn out the present Government, in which there are now two practical working farmers, the Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, and the Hon. E. J. Davis, Provincial Secretary, with honest Hon. W. Hart, not a lawyer by any means, as Minister of Public Works, and put in their places a whole gang of hungry lawyers and doctors, and will the farmers interests be better cared for? Does it look to reason?

These men have been here for the express purpose of trying to defeat the election of a well-known practical and hard working farmer, Bowen E. Aylsworth Esq., and electing in his stead a village doctor who is always their faithful follower in the Legislature.

SOME REFORMS WE NEED.

Now, here are some of the many reforms needed by the farmer-taxpayers just now. Can we look to the present Tory leaders to get them?

The present bonus system should be stopped. Like the iniquitous pension system in the States, the evil grows worse and worse and threatens to become a veritable mill-stone about the necks of the actual farmer. In the States some years ago one party began to buy up all those interested in pensions and paid them off well out of the public treasury. Then the other party went them one better and increased the pensions and added to the number getting the money. So it has gone on, a race between the rival parties until now, thirty-five years after the American war, there are far more on the pension list than in the beginning and over one hundred and forty millions of the peoples taxes are being squandered on pensions each year. Now too the evil has become so great and so fixed that neither set of party leaders dare try to stop it. Too many are interested and the tax-payers are being bled unmercifully. Years ago in Canada a Tory Government put a bounty of $1 a ton on Canadian pig iron. That bought the interested support of a good many. After another election that bounty was raised to $2 a ton, and a good many more were thus bought over, for there are men living in almost every county in Canada that have some interest in iron ore lands. Then came in the Liberals at Ottawa and they found so many interested it was to their interest to raise that bounty to $3 a ton, where it now stands. Meantime our Ontario Government put a bounty of $1 on all Ontario pig iron, and a year or two ago, added a bounty on Ontario steel on the back of all that.

What interest have the farmer taxpayers of Lennox in paying a few iron manufacturers in some of our cities these $1 on every ton of iron turned out, and $1 extra if that iron is made into steel? Does it not add that much to the burden of all our taxation? Does it add one dollar to the value of our farms? Does it not induce men to leave legitimate farming and invest in ore lands and in wild-cat iron-smelting? Suppose 500 tons a day gets manufactured under this spoon-fed system; that means $2000 every day additional taxation, or $730,000 a year, or more than the assessed value of one of our old townships.

ONE HONEST MAN

DEAR EDITOR—Please inform your readers, that if written to confidentially, I will mail, in a sealed letter, particulars of a genuine, honest, home cure, by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous debility, sexual weakness, night losses and weak shrunken parts. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell and want no money, but bear a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness. ## THE OLD SYSTEM ONE.

Better and Easier Work Done By Diamond Dyes.

The dyeing of cotton rags for the making of carpets, mats and rugs was for a long time a tedious, difficult and unsatisfactory operation owing to the crude and old fashioned dye-stuffs that home dyers were obliged to use.

Of late years all this has been changed for the advantage and benefit of every home. Science has given the world the Diamond Dyes that have brought joy and comfort to millions of housewives.

The makers of the celebrated Diamond Dyes prepare special cotton colors such as Fast Pink, Fast Orange, Fast Purple, Fast Garnet, Fast Navy Blue, Fast Crimson, Fast Seal Brown, Fast Yellow, Fast Scarlet, Fast Cardinal, Fast Black and other colors that are unfading in washing, and fast in rain or sun. No other dyes in the world can give such wonderful results on cotton goods, and no others but the Diamond Dyes are fully guaranteed.

The Man in Debt.

There is no greater spur to a young man of acute intellect and sound health than a thumping debt of, say, $50,000. How inferior are the novels written by Balzac before he had incurred great obligations to those written in hope of freedom from his debt! Furthermore, a man who owes a large sum of money seems to be respected by the butcher, baker and candle-stick maker more than the thrifty, anxious soul who is disquieted by a trifling unpaid bill. The audacious debtor is pointed out to strangers, not derisively, not with the fingers of reproach, but as a historical building, a landmark in the community. He wears the best clothes, eats and drinks sumptuously, sits in the chief seats in the theatre, and as a rule spends the summer on a steam yacht. The man who owes $50,000 is far better off, so far as this world goes, than the man who owes $50. Are there not banks that lend cheerfully to him who already owes them $50,000, fearing possibly that, if angered by refusal, the debtor will never pay even a portion of the original debt? Yes, a man of acute intellect and sound body should contract as soon as possible after he starts in business a thumping debt. The only trouble is the difficulty in finding anyone who will lend the first $50,000. We have not found him yet, and we have been searching for him since 1879.—Boston Journal.

Insuring Workmen.

The German Government provides a system of compulsory insurance for working men. Under this system a workman 20 years of age pays an equivalent of 40 cents a week for three years, and at the age of 65 he receives the sum of $77. In the meantime having had an insurance against accidents. The annual premium is divided into three parts, one of which is paid by the workman, another by his employer and the third by the state. The report for 1896 shows that 18,385,000 persons were insured under the law, of whom 3,400,000 were employed in shops and factories, 12,200,000 were employed in agriculture and 690,000 were in the employ of the state. In that year the number of accidents was 74,897, of which 6448 terminated fatally. The total expense of the system for the year was $13,400,000.

"Dog Walkers."

"Dog walkers" and hotel portresses are among the new fields opened up to women in England. Certain families have dogs who need exercising. Now the dog walker calls at their homes and presents a card on which is printed "Miss So-and-So, Walker of Dogs." For so much a month she guarantees to take "doggie" and trot him about the streets twice a day, each trip to consume twenty minutes. All of this she does for 3 shillings a week. And some women are now earning quite a good livelihood in this fashion.

Canadian Parks.

With wise forethought the Canadian Government has set apart a number of islands and parts of islands from Kingston, Ont., to Alexandria Bay, for park purposes. This has been done on the understanding that the state of New York would set aside tracts of land of equal extent on the American side. The lands put aside for common use in Canada are for fishermen, campers, and pleasure-seekers generally. — Chicago Times-Herald.

A Cure That Was Permanent.

The Medicine Used Was Paine's Celery Compound.

Day after day home and foreign cures are heralded as the result of using this or that medicine. It is safe to assert that many of the published letters are bogus, and others will hardly bear the light of investigation.

The cures effected by Paine's Celery Compound, and noted in the press of the country, have all the ring of genuineness and honesty about them, and the original letters can be seen at any time by an interested public.

It has also been proven in numberless instances that the cures made by Paine's Celery Compound are permanent. Another letter has just been received, this time from Mr. P. J. Kilbride, Postmaster, Inverness, P. E. I., testifying to the permanency of his cure. His case was one of the most serious and critical ever given to the public and his complete cure astonished his many friends and the residents of his town.

Mr. Kilbride says: "Over three years ago I gave you a testimonial for Paine's Celery Compound after it had cured me.

"To day I am in splendid condition, and have not been sick a single day since I used the famous Paine's Celery Compound.

"I certainly owe my present health and strength to your medicine, and I am fully convinced it saved me from a condition bordering on insanity. I can now sleep and eat well, and I thank God for Paine's Celery Compound and the great change.

"I have received and answered 250 letters since my testimonial was published. These letters came from all parts of Canada and the United States. It has been a pleasure answering these letters from sufferers, and I trust my recom-

SURE TEST OF DEATH.

FRENCH SCIENTISTS' INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

An Immersion Process—Hand Placed in Acid Bath and Then on a Bromide Plate—Use of Digital Effluvia—Easily Recognized on a Plate.

Since the discovery of the X-rays we have become accustomed to all manner of surprises in photography, and if these successive discoveries interest us nothing mysterious or marvellous astonishes us any longer. During the last sessions of the Biological Society, one of the most learned practitioners, Dr. Luigs, a member of the Academy of Medicine, read a paper on the subject of some new experiments in photography.

In collaboration with Mr. David, the Doctor had succeeded in fixing permanently and distinctly on a photographic proof the effluvia from the fingers of an adult enjoying perfect health. To obtain this result the two savans shut themselves in a dark room with their subject. The hand which was to be experimented upon was placed in a bath of hydroquinone; the palmar sides of the fingers were then placed on a photographic plate covered with bromide of silver. The pose should last from fifteen to twenty minutes to be successful. The bromide plate, treated in the usual manner, furnished a proof as curious as it was instructive.

The extreme tips of the fingers could be seen forming a variegated spot, standing out in bold relief from the circumference of effluvia which surrounded them. In the upper left hand corner of the plate could be seen a fragment of skin, which had become detached in the strong acid bath, and which gave out direct effluvia under the form of vertical threads like shagwigs. All the tiny white spots seen on the black background of the proof represent the effluvia dust floating in the hydroquinone bath.

In reply to some criticisms Dr. Luigs isolated two fingers from direct contact

IS NOT A NEW WOMAN.

SHE ISN'T EMANCIPATED AND DOESN'T WANT TO BE.

The Southern Woman Revolves Around Man, Wishes to so Revolve, and Is Determined to Revolve Around Him Only, Let Others Do as They May.

The typical Southern woman is purely feminine, says The New York Sun. Whether by nature worldling or puritan, self-contained or impetuous, bred in the cotton lands or in the confines of town or city, she is an out-and-out loyalist where man is concerned. She drew in the doctrine of masculine ascendancy with her earliest breath.

You may be sure that the typical Southern woman would never employ a woman physician, attorney, or undertaker, nor, least of all, sit under a woman minister. If the men who stand in immediate relation to her show weakness where she looked for strength, or wickedness where only good was expected—if they fail to steer the household bark in safe and pleasant waters, and otherwise prove faithless to their trust—she covers up their shortcomings as best she can, even from herself, and ascribes such failures to adverse circumstance. She must keep her ideals. She loves even where she cannot approve, and condones things contrary to every fibre of her nature.

"It is all as plain as daylight to me," said a Southern woman recently visiting this city. "Man's province in life is to do, and woman's is to be; to be pretty, for instance, or at least as pretty as she can, and to be agreeable. I regard being agreeable as woman's primary business in life, because so much else, that seems more important just at first glance, depends on it. If a woman just lays herself out to be agreeable to her husband, and manages, besides, to inspire her son, if she has a son, with the desire to do something worth doing, worth having been created for, and contrives to make him comprehend something of the value of life, I'm sure that's doing a heap more good in the world than mixing up with voters and bothering with politics."

In the typical Southern household the masculine factor is the pivot about which everything else revolves. The masculine factor may be represented by a mere youth of seventeen; may be only a baby boy, or may be an infirm great uncle or irritable guardian or grandfather; it is all the same. Whether husband, cousin, brother-in-law, son, or even relation by courtesy the male factor predominates.

"We would rather not have breakfast so late Sunday mornings, it makes us get to church late, but Uncle Billy never breakfasts before half past 9, and he likes us all to be at the table," said a young Southern woman in relating a household incident to the writer.

"But I should prepare everything nicely for him and leave his breakfast with the cook, and consult my own conven-

BETTER THAN GOLD

IS THE RARE TREASURE OF PERFECT HEALTH.

A Nova Scotia Lady Says "I Consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a Priceless Boon to suffering Humanity," From the Amherst, N.S., Sentinel.

The rugged and the strong do not appreciate to its full extent the blessing of perfect health. It is only those who have passed through a trying illness, who feel that health is a treasure to be prized more than silver or gold. Among those who have experienced the truth of this is Miss Sabra Rector, of West River, Herbert, N.S. This lady has passed through a trying and wearisome illness, from which happily relief was found through the medium of a medicine that has brought health and strength to thousands of others, and whose medicinal virtues will work equally good results in all cases where it is given a fair trial. Miss Rector says:—"I feel it is my duty to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they have done wonders for me. About two years ago I became very ill with a complication of diseases. I was suffering with indigestion, biliousness and the resulting nervous disorders, such as sick headache, loss of appetite, and flushes of heat and cold. I began doctoring, and although I had the best of care I seemed to grow worse every day. I slept but little and when lying down would grow so hot and suffer from a sensation of smothering that I would find it necessary to arise. Then the other extreme would come and I would shiver with cold. Time wore on and there was no improvement in my condition. I was not able to do any work about the house and even the exertion of moving about would tire me out. If I attempted to walk any distance or hurried in the least I would gasp for breath and could scarcely speak. I had a very poor appetite, and what food I ate did not seem to agree with me or furnish needed nourishment, and I also suffered with a severe pain in my side and back. During this time I tried many remedies, but they gave me no relief whatever. I had become so weak, and my system was so run down that life was a burden to me. At this stage, my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I determined been a pleasure answering these letters from sufferers, and I trust my recommendation of Paine's Celery Compound will help suffering humanity."

BERRY BULLETIN.

M. A. Thayer on the Best Work For the Month of September.

The bearing season being over, the delight of unfolding leaf, bud and blossom past, the fruit matured, and the appetite satisfied, we are apt to neglect the very means of future success.

Remember, two seasons of good work are necessary to produce best crops of berries.

The babyhood of the plant requires careful nursing in the spring. The childhood of the plant careful training and protection in the fall, and the mature or exhausted plant, care at all times.

The berry plant gives you fruit but once. All the energy, and even life itself, are offered up in its wonderful effort to produce fruitful seed. It then dies, and should be renewed and burned.

Nature knowing the sacrifice, provides a new growth from the roots and repeats its efforts again and again.

The neglect of a plant at any stage of growth carries the result through life just as surely as with a child or other animal growth.

After fruiting, the roots of plants should be nursed back into vigorous life, by cutting out all old and surplus growth, cultivate thoroughly, and give a good dressing of fine manure or wood ashes.

This best prepares them for resisting the cold winters of the north, and stimulates them for active work in the early springs of the south.

It is sometimes desirable to propagate your own plants. If so, select strong, new growth of currants and grapes, as soon as the leaves fall out in pieces about eight inches long, each piece containing three buds. Set in long straight rows, eight or ten inches apart, leaving top bud near the surface of the ground. Cultivate and keep free from weeds. Good one year plants are thus made the following season.

For black raspberries, bury the tips of the cane as soon as it naturally bends to the ground, leave until spring, when it is ready to detach and transplant.

Plants from the blackberry and red raspberry are usually taken from the sprouts, or suckers that come up between the rows or around the hill, considerable care being necessary in digging the plants.

Root cuttings make best plants. Select strong roots in spring or fall, cut in pieces about five inches long, and sow in drills about three feet apart.

The gooseberry being more difficult to propagate, should be planted up, covering the hill except the tips of the branches, these branches are removed, made into cuttings and set out the same as currants.

There is no more fascinating work than the propagation of plants.

floating in the hydroquinone bath.

In reply to some criticisms Dr. Luigs isolated two fingers from direct contact with the plate. The result was a proof with three impressions, similar to the first proof, and two others not so well developed, but nevertheless convincing.

"It can be seen," said the Doctor, "that this new method of producing photographs by immersion is susceptible of fruitful results, both in physiology and pathology. Its application is simple, it requires no complicated apparatus and can be practised by any one with some knowledge of photography."

The variations of this nervous force, which is incessantly ejected from the tips of the fingers, may be gauged, according to the age, the sex, the different phases of the day and the emotions which are agitating the human subject.

Thus the study of these effluvia, their density, their diminution, will permit us to experiment in the domain of the phenomena of sensibility, and perhaps also that of motivity, as we are still ignorant of their intrinsic physiological characteristics. The Doctor believes that certain temperaments, certain professions even, may present special phenomena for examination. He has proofs of the fingers of a pianist and of a masseur, which are absolutely curious. The effluvia of the masseur are violently accentuated; they jut out in globules of variable sizes and are very characteristic. Between the fingers of the pianist are seen fine filaments, which described odd and distinctly marked curves.

But the real advantage of Dr. Luigs' discovery is the fact that he has enriched science by giving it a positive means of determining death.

She Remembered Him.

Cholly (addressing stranger)—Ah, b g pardon, my dear, but didn't we meet at the bench show last week?

Pain in the Back. DEAR SIRS,—I was troubled with pain in the back for months, and after trying several remedies without effect, thought I would use Hagyard's Yellow Oil. I am glad to say that after using two bottles I was completely cured, and cannot recommend this excellent remedy too highly.

MISS ANNA CHAPMAN,
South River, Ont.

for him and let him eat breakfast with the cook, and consult my own convenience," protested her friend.

"And leave him to breakfast alone, the only day he has to himself?"

The tone and manner with which this was said showed plainly that such a solution of the problem was utterly impossible. The Uncle Billy alluded to was not a vital factor in this household. His orphan nieces owned their home, and he simply lived with them, and upheld the family dignity. You may be sure that his room was the sunniest and most accessible in the house, and his favorite corner by the sitting room fire a veritable harbor of comfort, with slippers and well-filled tobacco appliances kept always near at hand.

In a Southern city where it is against convention for women to be out after nightfall without escorts, a party wishing to go to church, or to visit, or to walk, and having no man to call on, borrows some small nephew or cousin or neighbor for the purpose, no matter how young or how immature he may be, and sets off satisfied now that this masculine shape attends it.

"Why do you not go out? The fresh air will do you good," was urged once on sisters scarcely over the first shock of a bereavement.

"We haven't decided about our mourning yet. It is not made up."

"Well, why not decide? It is suicidal for you to stay so close indoors."

"Well, the mantua maker suggests a four-inch crepe border for our Henrietta gowns, and Louisa thinks it would be better to have them plain. Brother Tom is to come on again from Atlanta soon, and he will decide for us."

Brother Tom came on and decided. He decided in favor of plain-bordered Henriettas, and Louisa, having a wife and large family of his own to care for, it is possible that he did not give the serious consideration to the matter that it deserved. His three sisters, however, one of whom held his gloves and hat, while another one rubbed the obstinate spot off his vest and listened breathlessly to his account of his last attack of neuralgia, felt sure that there could be no other brother in the world half so kind and sympathetic and interesting. Family ties are strong in the South.

In the same city there is a middle-aged woman to whom maturity has brought, apparently, only additional charm. Here is a beautiful nature, but she has never married, and why? Because the man of all others whom she cared for long ago her brother did not like. He was a good enough man as men go. There were no fundamental objections to his character or social standing, but her brother did not like him, so she gave him up. There are traces of such "giving up" discernible about many other Southern women today.

Acquiescence to masculine authority does not desert the Southern woman, even when she is a grandmother, or, perhaps, a great-grandmother. Her pride in her son's praise of her new gown or cap is almost girlish, and her face flushes with pleasure when he tucks the carriage robes tenderly about her and expresses concern as to whether her sunshade is large enough to ward off the afternoon sun.

"Don't drive fast, Tony, mother does not like it," he charges, and although "mother" may own the equipage and the ground over which she will drive, and knows perfectly well that her orders might be law, she is happy, because her masculine divinity has elected to regulate her life for her.

If a woman holds the purse in the typical Southern household, and there are boys and girls to be educated from the scant funds, the utmost effort will be made to give the boys every chance. The girls need advantages, too, but it is felt that they could get along without them better than the boys.

The native-born Southern woman enjoys being pleasant. "It is blind instinct with her to smile cordially on the girl who sells her postage stamps, and to utter some truism to the elevator boy as they swing upward that will bring a shade of interest to the automaton face. Some portion of this exuberance of temperament gets ground off when the world rubs against her; she learns to be not so much in earnest and not so dependent. She gets so that she can make a tolerable bargain, too, and even master the first, the very first beginnings of the art of "pushing," but, that femininity of hers rarely gets rubbed out. It seems to be in the bone.

Shortness of Breath. "Since last year I have had serious heart trouble caused by malaria. Shortness of breath, smothering spells on retiring, violent palpitation, etc., often made me gasp for breath. On procuring Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I found to my surprise and delight that they gave almost instant relief. I feel healthy, restful sleep, my heart trouble disappeared, and I now feel very well and strong indeed." Mr. Hugh Moore, Ingersoll, Ont., makes this statement for my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I determined to give them a trial. After using four boxes I felt so much better that hope and encouragement came to me once more. I continued the use of the Pink Pills and found myself steadily gaining health and strength. By the time I had used four boxes more I had fully regained health and strength and I am not only able to do my full share of household work, but also attend to my Sabbath school class and other church duties. I look upon Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a priceless boon to suffering humanity."

Hot Water a Sovereign Remedy.

The other day a woman in a country town was dismayed by the appearance of her young son, borne into the house by friendly hands, and suffering from one of the common accidents of childhood.

In coaxing he had managed to fall in such a way that one leg was caught between two swiftly moving sleds and was, in consequence, dreadfully bruised and now becoming rapidly discolored. His mother remembered that one of the summer boarders, whom she had entertained six months before, had told her to use hot water for such disasters. Here was an opportunity to try the remedy.

She immediately plunged the wounded member into a foot-bath of water as hot as the child could bear, and added more from time to time, as it cooled. This treatment was faithfully followed out, with such rapid effects that by the next day the little fellow was walking about the house, and able to use his injured leg, not freely, but enough for purposes of locomotion.

Its entire cure was a matter of a very short time, and it is not to be wondered at that that family now "swear by" hot water as a liniment. It will be found, used in the same way, equally efficacious for inflammation, for sprains, and should be called upon in any such emergency, and if the swelling is very bad, add vinegar.—Philadelphia Press.

One of the Others.

A certain English Duke, while doing from the station to the park on his estate to inspect a company of soldiers, observed a ragged urchin keeping pace with his carriage at the side.

His Grace, being struck with the cleanliness of the lad, asked him where he was going, the lad replied:

"To the park, to see the duke and his dogs."

The Duke, feeling interested, stopped his carriage and opened the door to the lad, saying he could ride with him to the park.

The delighted lad, being ignorant as to whom he was riding with, sat at His Grace's feet, interested with his own remarks till the park gates were reached.

As the carriage entered it was saluted by the company and grooms. When His Grace said to the lad:

"Now, can you show me where the Duke is?"

The lad led his person over, and then, looking at the Duke, replied quite seriously:

"Well, I dunno, mister, but it's either me or you."

KITCHEN MANAGEMENT.

Lots of Trouble Saved By a Little Forethought and Method.

The great point of good management in the kitchen is to clean things away as you go on, and to be one day ahead in ordering necessities. For instance, take the every-day want of tea and sugar. At starting, order in two packets of each, and as one packet is cleared, order in another, so you will always be prepared for an emergency, and the servant will not be called away from her regular work to "run to the grocer's." The kitchen, managed by some cooks, is everlastingly in a muddle, because things, after they have been used, are left here, there and everywhere, instead of being washed and put away in their proper places. The mistress of the house should insist upon order in the kitchen, and also that her cook should get ahead with vegetables—at least in preparing them—before they are wanted; that is to say, with regard to potatoes, try to get them pared early in the day, and don't leave the shelling of peas when in season until the last moment. A dinner is often spoiled through vegetables being insufficiently cooked. It is the fashion in some houses to put a kitchen clock on at least ten minutes, a plan that is worth following when the cook has a tendency to be late. It is wonderful what a lot of trouble will be saved by a little forethought and method in the kitchen; and how time is economized if every vessel is in its right place. Sometimes one sees the sink laden with dirty pudding basins, milk jugs, knives and forks and other things besides. Cooks will leave stale pieces of bread about, and choppers and boards with fragments of meat still clinging to them. This is all very untidy and very unnecessary. One great secret of success in cooking is to have everything clean and fresh; another is: "Never put off till the last anything that can be done beforehand;" thirdly, keep a wary eye upon the clock.—Madame.

Tips on Darning.

The scenery of this homely art lies in running the thread of the darning cotton so far on each side of the hole that it does not immediately fray and pull out the goods.

Take a long thread of darning cotton to begin with and run it at least half an inch along the goods on each side of the hole. Continue this until the hole is singly covered. Now cross these threads in regular darning style, taking care that the same precaution is observed. A stocking darned in this way will wear, as far as the darning is concerned, as long as if no hole had existed.

To darn very large holes, such as are likely to occur from having been pulled or frayed out in the laundry, something more than a thread of darning cotton may be necessary, and a patch must be used. Such holes almost surely occur in the heel, as this part of a stocking is usually worn thin first and is more likely to fray.

In treating of the method of mending them it is safe to take the heel for a model.

From the leg of an old stocking, such as is sure to be found in your basket, cut a kite-shaped piece of goods about five inches long and four inches across. Turn the stocking wrong side out and lay the kite upon the heel so that the long pointed end runs up the back of the leg and the lower rounded part is at the base of the heel.

Run a stout linen thread down the centre of the kite, taking large, loose stitches. Now run in the same way across the kite-shaped piece, letting the thread be very slack. The next step is to sew the patch lightly to the heel by stitching it around the outside. If deftly done there will be neither wrinkle nor crease to tell the wearer that so important an operation had ever taken place.

Bea: If and Happy Homes.

The very word "home" touches every fiber of the soul and strikes every chord of the human heart with its angelic fingers: it is the heart's garden. The sweetest type of heaven is a beautiful home; it should be the most delightful place on earth, the centre of the purest affections and most desirable associations, as well as of the most attractive and exalted beauties to be found this side of paradise. Nothing can excel in beauty or sublimity the quietude, peace, affection and happiness of a well ordered home, where virtue is nurtured and every good principle sustained. There

TOUCHED-UP BEAUTY

PROPER METHODS FOR THOSE WOMEN WHO PAINT AND POWDER.

How the Trick Is Done to Secure the Most Artistic Results—Several Things to Be Considered If This Effect Is to Be Attained.

The correct putting on of powder and paint comes in for its share of the minute and devoted attention bestowed to-day on every portion of my lady's well-groomed anatomy. Facial blemishes are no longer accepted with patience. Women feel as amply able to overcome nature's blunders regarding their complexion as regarding the color of their hair or the size of their waist. The head of a fashionable school for artistic "make-ups" said, when asked to talk about her work and methods, says The New York Sun:

"Since women will paint, powder, and make themselves up, it is much better for them to do it artistically. By that I mean to do it in such a manner as to make them an attractive looking as possible, and not the unnatural-looking highly-colored creatures one meets so often."

"The great trouble with the majority of women is that they make up by gaslight or in a shaded room. Then when they go out on the streets or in the daylight they are more objects of ridicule than admiration. If you want to understand me follow a 'made-up' woman into a store and see the effect of the change of light. In the full light of the street she is ghastly, with her blotches of red and white and dark ringed eyes. In the half light of the store the change is a marked improvement, and the woman often appears very good looking, without a suggestion of paint or powder."

"Make-up" for the daylight should always be done with a handglass before a window where the brightest possible light will strike the face. And for this "make-up" one must never use dry or greasy rouge. It invariably shows purple by daylight. Pink and white powder must also be avoided, and only the cream colored be used. Pink powder gives the skin a most unnatural like tint, which, in the winter, when the face becomes cold, dampens almost to a purple. White has a greenish, ghastly effect. A clever woman puts on powder to smooth and refine her complexion, not to whiten it, and for that reason she selects a shade of cream powder as near as possible the natural color of the skin."

"Other points that a clever woman is careful about is not selecting face in on which a woman may intensify her "make-up" without arousing suspicion; for instance, when she has been on some exciting expedition. As a matter of fact, excitement makes most women pale, but there are some few who gain color and brilliancy by it. The pale woman may paint to imitate her more fortunate sister on such occasions. Still, this should be done with the utmost care, for it is a thousand times better to put on too little than too much. The great crime of women who make-up is using inferior materials and putting them on carelessly. The first hurts their own skins, the second hurts other people's eyes. So I say if women will make-up, and many of them will do it, they should be taught to use the proper materials and how to put them on."

THE GARROTE.

Spain's Horrifying Method of Executing Condemned Murderers.

The garrote by which the anarchist who killed the Spanish Premier was executed was named after its inventor, a Spanish iron worker, who witnessed a bungling execution of a relative on the gallows, which was the method employed by Spain up to about thirty years ago for carrying out the sentence of death.

home, where virtue is nurtured and every good principle sustained. There is nothing like system in the school room or in the home; have a place for everything and let everything be kept neat and orderly; it saves time and labor. Yet, the truest beauty of any home is the pleasant face, kind words and helpful hands.

Home should not be regarded as a place where the family merely eat, drink and sleep, but the spot to which the tired husband longs to return when the day's duties release his claim. To the man of business home should be an earthly paradise. Thrice happy is the man who finds solace and comfort in his home.

In the happy home one finds industry, sympathy and government, but love must be the director. Kind words, gentle acts and a sweet disposition make glad the heart where peace and blessings dwell. Every true wife will strive to cultivate these principles.

Each one must do his or her part, for it is unity that makes the happy home. The influence of a beautiful home is felt not only by its own inmates, but by everyone who shares its hospitality.

"Other points that a clever woman is careful about is not coloring just in front of the ears. In nature that spot is always white. Neither does she cover that uneven white spot in the middle of the cheek; but she is always very careful to let the color extend under the jaw and chin. If you will notice a child you will see that its color seems to spread from the jaw up and under. So the color should be put on a shade deeper there than on any other part of the face."

"To begin at the beginning, the first thing to do in making up is to wash the face with soap and water, cold water and some good soap that suits the skin. After the face has been gently dried apply the rouge with a sponge on the jaw. Then with the fingers rub it up and out, spreading it as evenly as possible. Then touch the under part of the chin with the sponge and rub it up with the fingers. The next step is to put on the powder. This must be done with a bit of rag, lamb's wool is best, and rubbed in with the fingers as was the rouge. I don't know why, but the fingers seem to be the only thing that will properly blend the colors on the face. Powder should be carefully applied and only to those parts which are naturally white. Never put it over the rouge except around the edges where blending is necessary, and above all things never have rouge so distinct that one may tell where it begins and ends. There are no deciding lines, excepting the brows and lashes, in a face artistically made up."

"Now, having the powder and paint on, we will go to the eyes and brows. That is very delicate work, which requires patience and skill. Rub the fingers over the brows, smoothing down the hairs. Then, with the finger brush which comes with every box of eyebrow coloring, color the brows, being careful to touch only the hairs, never the skin. Then open the eyes wide, and with the same little brush color both the upper and lower lashes. As that is the end of that little box's usefulness we will put it aside and take up the blue pencil. This is only an ordinary blue carpenter's or editor's pencil, and quite soft. With this make the slightest mark at the outer corner of the eyes and around the lids, just at the root of the lashes. Then with the tip of a finger very gently rub that line up until only the very slightest suspicion of blue remains. The greatest care should always be taken never to let black lines around a woman's eyes. Before leaving the eyes let me say that if the brow has not by nature the delicate sweep of a swallow's wing, a tiny comb should be used, after the coloring has been applied, to comb them in as narrow and graceful a line as possible. These directions carefully followed, the eyes will be very much more brilliant, and the make-up cannot be detected under the most glaring light."

"To color the lips a different rouge must be used. Never use the same for both cheeks and lips. The best coloring for the lips is a good grease rouge which will not easily rub off. This should be applied on the inner edge of the lips and rubbed out. There should be just the slightest suspicion and no more. I consider a good lip rouge beneficial, as it prevents chapping, and in that way the use of this pencil be detected. There is nothing which looks worse in a 'make-up' than clearly defined blue or preserves the fine texture of the lips."

"Of course the make-up which I have described is for daylight and should be applied before an open window under the strongest light. The rouge for the face is a liquid. That of a strawberry red is the most natural except for deep brunettes or pink and white blondes. This make-up, which cannot be detected by daylight, needs only to be intensified for gaslight, but not for electric light. That is the hardest, most unbecoming light that could possibly fall on a painted woman's face. Unless she can make up to perfection she will use nothing after the application of soap and water when going under the glare of the electric light. They are clever women who at the horse show and other places where the crowd is broad-brimmed hats to shield their faces from the glare of electricity."

"For gaslight 'make-ups' the slightest suspicion of color may be added on the upper eyelid, and on some faces a touch in the middle of the forehead just above the brow. This last touch is unbecoming to blondes as a rule, giving them what the French term a bourgeoisie appearance; while for a daylight 'make-up' the addition of color over the eyes gives a dissipated appearance."

"I do not believe that women should make themselves up for all occasions, and a thinking woman will not. In my opinion a woman should never make up in the morning, that is, before noon. Those are the hours when the complexion is always at its best and the skin should be allowed to rest. Then she should, on no account, make-up while traveling. There are also some occasions ago for carrying out the sentence of death.

The wretched wondered that a more expeditious and, therefore, merciful method had not been discovered. His little thought then that he would be the one to furnish his country with a substitute for the gallows, but the thought haunted him so long that he at length found it assuming ordered form in his mind, and in time the ponderous death-dealing machine that immortalized him in his country came to be a fact.

The two points of excellence claimed for the garrote are these: That it can be made with reasonable care to kill instantly and that it sheds not one drop of blood. Force that is measured by horse power is the agency it employs and its aim is the breaking of the victim's neck.

The unfortunate is first made to sit in a chair directly under two heavy iron bars, one of which is adjusted on the back of his neck, and the other, vulgarly known as the corbabin, or necktie, under his chin. Then the executioner grasps the handle, gives a vigorous twist and death is instantaneous. The entire machine is made of iron and ordinarily weighs several hundred pounds.

Persons who have witnessed all sorts of capital punishment are unanimous in the opinion that garroting is the most revolting and appalling of all. It is not always as expeditious as its inventor made it possible to be. A vicious executioner can prolong it practically at will, and herein is the system's great drawback, as it is now constituted. Cases are citable in which the process was prolonged twenty, thirty minutes, even three-quarters of an hour! The executioner merely gave twist enough to the handle or lever to choke his victim, then he turned it back and twisted again, a living man at first, and so on until his spite, having been satisfied, or his instructions, perhaps, obeyed, he gave one final turn and ended the tortured life. Such was the execution of Maloja in Matanzas, Cuba, in 1888!

Titles of Books.

Publishers enjoy much satisfaction in correcting ludicrous mistakes made by the public and by critics in the titles of books. One would expect that in such a matter they would be free from similar errors. Yet we are asked to say that this week is published Mr. Robert Barr's new novel, "The Mutual Many." This is a title that should make the hair of Lindley Murray's head stand on end, if he had any. When Dickens produced "Our Mutual Friend," grave grammatical misgivings were entertained respecting the claims of these words to pass as good English, but even those who were inclined to give Boffin the benefit of the doubt could have no hesitation in declaring "The Mutual Many" as a monstrous horrendum and an outrage on syntax. Daring as Mr. Barr's English sometimes is, we are strongly inclined to believe that he is incapable of perpetrating such a grammatical felony, and that the title sent us is due solely to the ingenuity of the publisher, or his assistant. The real name of Mr. Barr's book is, unless we are greatly mistaken, "The Mutable Many," which is quite a different thing from the other, and is imprinted with Shakespearean authority.

PIG FOR THE FAMILY.

A. A. SOUTHWICK TELLS ABOUT THE BACON CROSS HE MADE.

Symmetrical and Blocky Animals That Furnish Both Fat and Lean Meat—A Chester White-Yorkshire Cross For Quick Growth.

After an acquaintance with the characteristics of most of the prominent breeds actual experience proves to me that a cross between the Chester White boar and Medium Yorkshire sow will produce animals of the highest quality and most desirable type in the majority of cases. Pigs of this cross, if from good animals individually, are wonderfully symmetrical and blocky, with broad backs and springing ribs, a property which indicates at once a good feeding quality. Nearly every pig will retain the lopped ear of the sire and if anything the fineness of bone is equal to that property which is so characteristic of the dam. This style of pig suggests when ready for market the choicest quality family pork.

I anticipated in this cross not only a marked improvement in the most valuable meat portions of the animal, but also a notable increase in weight, which is in itself a valuable desideratum, especially if the gain can be gotten without an extra outlay for feed. On Dec. 2 I dressed seven pure-bred medium Yorkshire pigs, some nine months old, and seven of the cross breeds of the same age, the produce of an improved Chester boar and good, thrifty Medium Yorkshire sows. The feed and care in every particular had been alike in both cases. The seven Yorkshires weighed 2187 pounds, and the cross breeds 2472. The average length of these latter is from 12 to 18 inches more than the pure bloods. The average thickness of the back pork is from 1 1/2 to 2 inches more in the pure bloods than in the cross breeds, but the hams and belly pieces for bacon are much more profuse in lean meat in the latter with a less thickness of fat for a covering. One of the Yorkshires, weighing 282 pounds, had an average of five inches of solid pork the whole length of the back. As an illustration of the quickness of the growth of these cross breeds, a pair of pigs at Christmas were of the most desirable size for roasters, and these dressed the latter part of the following March 175 pounds each. They were fed upon the ordinary cooked swill in general use here.

In watching the growth and development of these animals I concluded that with six weeks feeding in either case on

GIRDLES THE EARTH.

Nicola Tesla Talks of His Latest Wonderful Discovery.

Nicola Tesla has just announced the completion of his latest discovery—the simultaneous transmission of messages by means of the earth's electrical currents to as many scattered points on the surface of the globe as may be desired. This he regards as by far his greatest achievement. He will follow his usual custom and lay his information before the world of science in his own works and accompanied by his own computations and conclusions. To a few intimates he gave a thrilling demonstration of the operation of his device for arresting and subjecting to control under natural laws the electrical substances in and about the earth. His latest invention, device or discovery is to produce such a disturbance of the electricity of the earth as can be felt and noted simultaneously at all parts of the globe.

Tesla had his rooms in the laboratory on Houston street, New York, darkened. From a room adjoining the one in which he and his visitors stood a current was turned on invisibly. A huge black disk hung on a frame about eight inches in diameter, from the centre of which protruded a brass electrode seven inches in diameter. As the group gazed at this the apartment was filled with a crackling sound, which increased till it sounded like the rattle of musketry. Bright flames shot from the electrode, not from pole to pole, as in ordinary demonstrations. Like fiery serpents the cells of flame darted in graceful lines around the disk. The longest sparks were fully eight feet from the point where they burst into dazzling brilliancy to the vanishing point. These electrical sparks were undoubtedly the longest flashes of light ever produced by similar means.

It seemed like a terrific lightning display, with the snapping, crackling sound, displacing the reverberation of heaven's artillery, and all remarked the weird and awing effect of the exhibition.

"What are you doing?" was asked Tesla.

"I am producing," said he, "an electrical disturbance of intense magnitude, which is continuing throughout the entire earth. In other words, I am pro-

THE FARMER'S BIRDS

WHY THE AGRICULTURIST SHOULD BE KIND TO THEM.

The Relations Between Them Should Be Friendly—Prof. Beal of Washington
Discusses the Feathered Insect Eaters and Furnishes Much Information.

(Special Correspondence.)

Washington, Special.—Assistant Ornithologist Beal, of the United States biological survey, has prepared a bulletin for the Department of Agriculture about common birds and their relation to agriculture. It is a very interesting official document. Prof. Beal says:

"It has long been known that birds play an important part in relation to agriculture; but there seems to be a tendency to dwell on the harm they do, rather than on the good. Whether a bird is injurious or helpful depends almost entirely upon what it eats; and in the case of unusually abundant species of birds the character of the food becomes a very practical question."

Farmers of experience have long since concluded that the big flocks of blackbirds, woodpeckers and other common birds are not present to commit depredations, but to help the farmer by destroying noxious insects. Nearly all land birds subsist principally on insects, and during the breeding season they rear their young exclusively on this sort of food. When farmers discover an unusually large flock of birds they may well be assured that there is an unusually large crop of insects. They are luscious, and whoever believes that common birds are not epicures has not studied birds. They not only eat insects, but some of them are very choosy of their selections. The common birds discover the presence of insects when human eyes would never even suspect their presence.

Attention is called by Prof. Beal to the fact that during the recent plague of locusts in the Western States they were eaten by every common bird in that section, and they formed the principal food of the birds during that entire season. Before the locusts came from the Rocky Mountains and descended upon the prairies the farmers complained of the unusual numbers of common birds. By prophetic instinct the birds knew that the locusts were coming, and they were there to receive them. The birds were, in some occult manner, advised of the immediate future, while the farmers were wholly unaware of the plague which was to come. Thus it appears that Providence is all-wise and all-seeing; or as the old hymn hath it: "He moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform."

Insectivorous birds feed upon that food which is most accessible and which is most palatable. Some birds pass by certain kinds of insects. They will not touch them, unless the birds are on short rations and ready to take any sort of food which will ward off the pangs of hunger. But the insects which are disdained by some birds are sought by other common birds as their chief dainties.

It is explained by the professor that ground-feeding birds will seek for insects in grass and dead leaves, or about the trunks of trees. Those insects are the most easily accessible; and the birds are like men, in that they are looking always for the easiest method of making a living. They will not fly as long as they can walk or waddle. No wise bird will make any effort to secure prey in the mountain tops when he can live like a prince in the valley. These common birds toil not, nor do they spin. They just take life as it comes, and live in clover if they can. They take no thought of the morrow, believing that sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. The common birds are wise fellows.

The fly-catching birds have an easy time of it. They do not live in hotels, and order their meals sent to their rooms. On the contrary, they simply sit and wait for their opportunities. They know that there are lots of flies in the world; millions of them; and that flies constantly fly. They know that by sitting on their limbs, and patiently waiting the course of events, there will be enough flies every day coming their way

A well selected text is half of the sermon. Given a good text and a preacher who is in earnest, and the result is sure to be good. The text of this article is a plain simple statement that proves itself in the reader's own mind without argument. The text is "Good health is better than great riches."

Without health nothing really matters very much. A hacking cough takes all the beauty out of a landscape or a sunset. Erysipelas or eczema will spoil the enjoyment of sprightly conversation, of a beautiful concert, of a wonderful painting. The biggest bank account in the world won't pay a man for his health, but a very small amount of money will make him healthy and keep him healthy.

Most all bodily troubles start in the digestive or respiratory organs. It is here that improper living first makes an opening for disease. The development differs as constitutions and temperaments differ. The causes are almost identical. To get at the root of the matter is simple enough if you start right.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine for the whole body. It works through the digestive organs on all the others.

It cures the first thing it comes to and after that, the next. It puts health in place of disease in the stomach, and from the vantage ground thus gained, it reaches every fiber of the body and drives disease before it—indigestion, liver troubles, kidney complaint, biliousness, skin and scalp diseases, salt-rheum, tetter, eczema, and all the troubles caused by impure blood.

sucking, in consuming so many insects." The kingbird comes in for a word of praise. He is distinctly a fly catcher and takes a large portion of his food on the wing. The kingbird also watches the trees closely, and gathers in all sorts of insects. This bird has been suspected of catching honey bees; but an Iowa farmer says that he shot a dozen kingbirds near his hives, and found not a single bee in any one of their stomachs. Therefore he concludes that the kingbird is guiltless of this charge, modified by the fact that in various parts of the country 14 kingbirds were killed, and 40 drone bees were found in their stomachs. Isn't that wonderful? How in the realm of intelligence could those birds know that the drones were proper prey, while the working bees and queens must be spared?

The meadow lark is complimented because of the fact that it feeds almost wholly upon insects. In 238 stomachs examined, it was discovered that 73 per cent. of the food of the birds consisted of insects alone. It nests on the ground, and walks about with dainty step, knowing that it is a welcome visitor and therefore not in fear of human assault. The meadow lark is wholly beneficial, and is not guilty of the common charge of pulling sprouting grain. It loves fat bugs and beetles, and takes grasshoppers and caterpillars also, whenever they can be found. Even when the ground is covered with snow, this bird finds insects somehow, and does not seek the granaries. It is a very skillful insect catcher.

of these animals I concluded that with six weeks feeding in either case on a mixture of corn and oats ground, with say a quart of whole corn a day to each pig, that the same or perhaps greater weight, especially in the case of the cross breeds, might have been gotten at six months old or thereabouts. These two lots were not fed cornmeal or corn. I think the Chester Cross with a little extra feeding will easily make a hundred pounds to the pig more at the same age than the pure breeds and have a very much greater proportion of lean meat in the most valuable parts.—A. #### When Hogs Are Ripe.

Governor Rusk happened to drive over the State line once into Wisconsin looking at the farms. He was particularly struck with one farm, on which he found everything in first-class order, and riding up to the house inquired the name of the owner, when a tall German came out and gave his name as Theodore Louis (who has lectured in Canada), says a writer in The Atlanta Constitution.

"What do you regard as the greatest wealth-producing agency in agriculture?" the Governor asked him.

"The hog," was the sententious reply. "Upon what do you base this statement?"

"He lifts more mortgages than anything else."

The conversation which ensued developed the fact that Louis had once been what is called an all-wheat farmer and kept constantly sinking into debt. He decided that something had to be done quickly or there would be very little left for Louis, so he decided to try the hog. The first year he made a little money, the second he made more, and then he became thoroughly interested.

The result was that he became recognized as a great authority on hogs. His neighbors took up his example and mortgages began to be lifted, until finally there was not one on record against that community.

"How long would you keep a hog?" asked Governor Rusk.

"I would not keep him—I would kill him."

"When?"

"When he is ripe."

"When is he ripe?"

"When he is fat."

"Wouldn't it pay to keep the hog for two or three years?"

"I tried that once," said Louis. "I took a hog in the fall and weighed him, and I took my corn and weighed it. When spring came the corn was all gone, and the hog weighed about what he did in the fall. That made me say next year that I would kill my hogs in the fall and save my corn."

"How much does it cost to keep a hog through the winter?"

"Three dollars."

"How many hogs winter in Minnesota?"

"One million. I have just looked at the auditor's report."

"Do you mean to say that we lose $3,000,000 a year in wintering hogs?"

"Yes, that's what you do. If you kill them all in the fall you will have left in your pens $3,000,000 worth of corn to sell."

Diseased plants should never be added to the manure heap, as they contaminate the whole mass. It is possible to spread plant diseases over the entire farm through the agency of manure, and no farm will get rid of any disease that attacks plants until all refuse is burnt.

There are thousands of sickly school-girls all over this broad land that are dragging their way through school-life who might enjoy that abundant life which belongs to youth by simple attention to hygienic laws and a proper course of treatment with Scott's Emulsion. This would make the blood rich, the heart-beat strong; check that tendency to exhaustion and quicken the appetite by strengthening the digestion. Our book tells more about it. Sent free.

of electricity of intense magnitude, which is continuing throughout the entire earth. In other words, I am producing a disturbance of the earth's charge of electricity which can be felt to the innermost parts of the earth."

"And the result will be?"

"Ah," said Tesla, "that is almost incomprehensible. This electrical disturbance by means of certain simple instruments can be felt and appreciated at any point of the globe. In this way messages can be sent the entire earth around and be taken up at any part of the earth without the aid of intervention of wires in any way at all."

A New Electric Lamp.

It is prophesied that present methods of illumination are to be superseded by a lamp nearly perfected by Puluj, of Vienna, one of the earlier experimenters on cathode rays. For fifteen years he has been working upon it. Not only does it generate Roentgen rays, but it also transforms nearly all the energy of the electric current into light. Prof. Elger's experiments prove that a single horse power of electric energy would be sufficient to operate 40,000 Puluj lamps. Prof. Lodge, head of the department of experimental physics in Universal College, Liverpool, says that "if mechanical energy can be converted entirely into light alone one man turning the crank of a suitable machine could generate enough light for a whole city." Puluj claims that his lamp fulfills this condition. Our present electric lighting system only utilizes from one to three per cent. of its energy in light, the rest passes off in heat. Puluj's lamp is lighted by means of an induction coil or a glass plate electric machine. The static electricity is the same as lightning. Puluj is investigating "the development of ethereal light vibration by chemical means."

Died With His Secret.

With the recent death at Naugatuck of Herbert B. Fowler, there has been lost the secret of an invention that promised to be of great value to the commercial world. It was a process for making an electrical deposit of copper from a solution upon wood or any other rigid or semi-rigid substance. This process was made possible by coating the substance that was to be copper-plated with a liquid preparation, the secret of which was known only to Mr. Fowler. Every means had been used to induce him to patent the invention, but he declined, fearing he might lose the use of it.

A Chicago company was recently formed which offered to take up manufacturing with the copper deposit extensively, but conditioned their offer upon the patenting of the invention. Their proposition was sent to Mr. Fowler, but before an agreement had been reached the inventor died.

Scientific Insect Destruction.

A noted bacteriologist has lately conceived a plan of exterminating all both some insects by inoculating them with some disease peculiarly fatal to their respective species. The plan was suggested by the successful results obtained by experiments in ridding fields of grain from chinch bugs. Mosquitoes, which are believed to convey malaria from the swamps to the human system, would as exist no more. Flies, which are not as good scavengers as was once supposed and for whose loss improved sanitary measures would more than compensate, would no longer trouble the heads and noses of would-be nappers. There is a pathogenic germ which could be cultivated in tubes, as consumption bacilli are now propagated, which would sweep millions of the latter from existence. Bugs, gnats and all insects which ruin grain and fruit are to be the subject of bacteriological experiment.

Wounded Plants Have Fever.

H. M. Richards, in England, has discovered in wounded plants a phenomenon corresponding to fever in animals. It runs, as does increase in respiration, a definite course, and attains its maximum in about 24 hours after injury. He says that, compared with the ordinary temperature of plants in relation to the surrounding medium, the rise after the injury is "as great as, if not greater than, in animals." In massive tissues, such as potatoes and radishes afford, the effect of the injury was local, whereas in leaves (e.g., onion bulbs) much greater extent of tissue was sympathetically affected.

Drunk and Sober.

A statistician has compiled a curious table of the expectancy of life, drunk and sober. At the age of 20, drunk 15 years, sober 44 years; at the age of 40, drunk 11, sober 20 years.

constantly fly. They know that by sitting on their limbs, and patiently waiting the course of events, there will be enough flies every day coming their way to meet the requirements of their appetites. They simply open their little bills, give a peck at the passing fly and swallow him. If it is a common fly, well and good. If it is a fat house fly, so much the better. The birds know their business. After reading the professor's story about birds the writer is convinced that there are plenty of men who have much less sense, and who might well study the common birds and their methods of getting on in the world.

In the scientific study of common birds, there has been many a murder committed. Field observation is not sufficient for man, because he cannot discern the details of the workings of the birds. In order to obtain accurate and reliable information, man loads his shot gun goes out into the field and shoots down a number of these innocent cannibals. For what purpose? Simply to take dead birds and examine his stomach. The scientist can then learn what food the birds subsist upon, and hence can determine whether or not they are friends or foes of the husbandman. It is generally discovered that the common birds are the friends of the farmers, and are destroying his insectivorous enemies. This discovery having been made in each case, the farmers are informed of the result of the investigation, and there after the shotgun is dispensed with. So the killing of a few birds results in saving the lives of thousands of others.

The professor says that cuckoos are much given to eating caterpillars, and do not object to their hair, as many birds do. On the contrary cuckoos eat so many hairy caterpillars that the hairs pierce the inner linings of their stomachs; and when they are opened and turned inside out, the cuckoo stomachs seem to be lined with a thin coating of fur, which appears to be a part of the stomach itself. Nature provides for continued digestion, just the same.

While the scientific slaughter of cuckoos was going on, 16 of the birds were examined, and the result shows that they had all been diligently engaged in helping the farmers of their neighborhood. The 16 stomachs showed the remains of 328 caterpillars, 11 beetles, 15 grasshoppers, 63 saw flies, four spiders, and three stink bugs. Those were industrious birds, and they were doing their best for their farmer friends, when they were ruthlessly shot down for scientific investigation. Just think of it! There were 328 caterpillars, many of them in the larva stage. But for those cuckoos all of those caterpillars would have been working on the leaves of trees; and they prefer apple trees. Of the 63 saw flies, 60 were in the larva stage.

Investigation demonstrates that farmers should do their best to cultivate woodpeckers. They leave no marks on healthy trees. On the contrary they unerringly trail down the wood-boring larvae, and dislodge and devour them. It is a picnic for a woodpecker to catch these tree killers. They eat them with as much satisfaction and gratification as a summer girl manifests over a dish of ice cream. It usually happens that after these wood-boring larvae are destroyed, the holes are filled with colonies of ants. Do the woodpeckers leave them to the ants? Not much, they like ants pretty well, too; and they watch those holes carefully, well knowing that they will have an epicurean festival of ants after a little while; and consequently they keep the trees clean all the time. It is their business and pleasure to do so. Two flicker woodpeckers' stomachs were examined in the laboratory, and they each contained 3000 ants, besides the wood-boring larva. Those were good woodpeckers, and ought to have been kept and cultivated by the farmers' friends as near neighbors and close friends.

The official bulletin has a good word also for the red-headed woodpecker. It is admitted that this bird is guilty of tapping trees and drinking the sap. It has been discovered, however, that very few trees are seriously injured; although some have died within a year or two after being tapped by these red-headed fellows. The professor says, however, that "the bird captures millions of insects which are attracted by the sweet sap, and the tree tapping is largely for the purpose of catching insects. It is probable that the red-head fully com-

"I couldn't tell exactly. I saw them go by, and it seemed to me they were your husband and mine, but I'm not sure."

"It's perfectly disgraceful!" she exclaimed.

"What's the matter?" inquired her husband.

"Here's a description of a woman who gets up in public and declares herself an anarchist."

"Well," was the rejoinder, "maybe it's all for the best. I believe I'd like to see women crowd the males out of the anarchist business. When they throw bombs they wouldn't be so likely to hit anybody."—Washington Star.

An Unsympathetic Mood.

"Is it not sweet and inspiring," she said, "to stand on the shore where the waves sing eternally and gaze into the offing?"

"Well," replied the young man who lacks sentiment, "I suppose that is enjoyable if you know how to appreciate it. But the last time I went to the seashore I didn't give much thought to the offing. What I wanted was an awning."

Practical.

"What nonsense it is," remarked the sentimental girl, "to take daisies and by plucking off the petals try to learn whether or not a man loves you."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne; "it is very silly. A much better method is to take the roses he sends you around to the florist's and find out how much they cost."—Washington Star.

Expert Opinion.

"I hear," said the fat lady, "that you were out with the boys last night?"

The two-headed gent groaned dismally. "I was," he admitted. "And I want to say to you," he continued, "that in a case of this kind two heads are not better than one."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Twenty-five Years in Orders.

On Wednesday, Sept. 22nd, the Rev. Arthur Jarvis celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination. It is proposed to hold a service appropriate to the occasion in the church at 7.30 p.m. This will be conducted by the Very Reverend the Dean of Ontario, other clergy being present and assisting. After the services an old fashioned reunion and reception will be given in the school room by Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis, to which the members of the congregation and their friends are invited. No personal invitations will be given. His Honor Judge Wilkison will take the chair.

A New Departure.

Mr. J. S. Hulett, Napanee's enterprising photographer, whose exhibits at the Lennox Fair is now looked upon as one of the most interesting features of the show, is putting out special efforts this year to have one of the finest displays of photographic work ever exhibited in this section of the country. It is Mr. Hulett's intention to exhibit a new class of work, never before shown in this section. As the time for holding the fair draws nigh, speculation is rife as to who will carry off the handsome prize awarded by Mr. Hulett to the handsomest girl baby. In thus encouraging the raising of pretty babies, J. S. is doing a good work and we trust his enterprise will be suitably rewarded.

Decidedly Cool.

A Napanee citizen had a unique experience while returning from the Toronto Industrial last week. When he boarded the train at the Union Station he carried a basket of luscious peaches in his hand. He set the basket on the seat beside him, placed his hat on it and settled back in his seat. At one of the stations enroute to Napanee a man boarded the train, removed the hat off the basket and walked off with the peaches. The owner of the fruit was so thunder-struck with astonishment at the coolness of the proceeding that it never dawned on him to enter a protest until the train had moved out. The citizen is congratulating himself that the man didn't appropriate his hat also.

The Conservatives of Lennox extended a welcome to Mr. J. P. Whitney, M.P., leader of the Ontario Opposition, and his two lieutenants, Dr. Willoughby, M.P., and Mr. Ed. Cochrane, M.P., of East Northumberland, at Napanee, on Thursday.

Mr. Whitney and his lieutenants arrived on the noon train and were met at the station by the following reception committee:—Messrs. R. A. Fowler, president of the Lennox Liberal Conservatives, U. Wilson, M.P., J. W. Bell, M.P., Jas. Reid, M.P.P., Dr. Meacham, M.P.P., J. C. Carscallen, Jessie Amey, T. V. Sexsmith, J. F. Chalmers, Allan Oliver, A. Downey, E. Davey, L. L. Gallagher, T. G. A good sprinkling of the fair sex graced the meeting with their presence.

When the chairman called the meeting to order Ida Kathleen, the pretty daughter of Dr. Cowan, came forward and presented Mr. Whitney with a bouquet of flowers. Retta Craig, another pretty miss, presented Dr. Meacham with a similar token of regard.

R. A. Fowler, president of the Lennox Lib-Con. Association, in opening the meeting considered it a privilege to occupy the chair. He felt very warm towards the Conservative party at present. Early in life he had enlisted under the banner of Sir John A. Macdonald and had never regretted it. He considered the Conservative party the party of progress and loyalty. As time was precious he would proceed at once to call upon the first speaker, our old friend and representative, Dr. Meacham.

Dr. Meacham said it afforded him a great deal of pleasure to be present to-day. There were a few little drawbacks. One was the fact that the Addington show was being held to day which no doubt kept a great many away. They had expected Mr. Miscampbell, but he was absent through illness.

Mr. St. John had promised to be present and they expected him for the evening meeting. Mr. Hardy had said it was his government or nothing, as the Conservatives had no men who were able to conduct the affairs of the Province. They would hear two of the leaders of the Opposition to day and could form their own conclusions. Dr. Meacham here took up the new License Act and strongly condemned it. Dealing with the finances of the Province, Dr. Meacham said that during John Sandfield Macdonald's regime he saved $900,000 per year and endeavored to show by specious reasoning that the present government were running in debt and had no surplus.

Mr. Uriah Wilson, M.P. was quite sure that they hadn't come to hear him and that he didn't come to make a speech. If Mr. Whitney, if elected, is as wreckless in the fulfilment of his promises as the Dominion Government he could count on his opposition when he came up for re-election. Mr. Wilson declared he was Dan McCarthy and his excellent company will appear at the Brisco Opera House, Napanee, on Monday and Tuesday, 20th, and 21st. The play presented will be one of Mr. McCarthy's latest successes "The Cruise of the Lawn," an Irish Comedy Drama, that has been a big hit wherever presented. The play is bright and has a strong vein of comedy running through it. Mr. McCarthy in the character of Paddy Miles, stands out clear and distinct, but not with such brilliancy as to throw the other characters in the background. The specialties introduced are good and the comedy work in the first and second acts is said to be very laughable. We have no doubt that the Brisco Opera House will be crowded to see this excellent performance. Tickets, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Obituary.

Marshall Bidwell Wagar, who died in Richmond, at the residence of Thomas Anderson Jr., on September, 3rd, had been a great sufferer from cancer, for the past two years. Deceased was in his sixty-first year and was a resident of Camden township until recently, when he went to reside with his daughter, Mrs. Anderson. He bore an excellent character and was highly respected by his many friends. The funeral which was the largest ever held in this community, was conducted by J. Spencer Ellis, of Toronto. The remains were taken to the Western Cemetery, Napanee, and placed in the vault. A widow, four daughters, and one son, are left to mourn the loss of a noble husband and kind father, and have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Largely Attended.

The entertainment under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance, in Brisco's Opera House on Monday evening was a highly successful affair. The Society had spared no effort and as a result the attendance was very large, over 1,000 people being present. Mr. D. Nesbitt, of Newburgh, made an efficient chairman. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music by Mrs. F. E. Vanluven, F. L. Tooker and D. P. Henwood, interspersed with addresses by W. W. Meacham, M.P.P., B. E. Aylsworth, Warden of the County, A. D. Weeks, Grand Treasurer of the Order, and J. M. Walton, Grand Worthy Patriarch. The following gentlemen countenanced the movement by their presence on the platform: W. Wilson, M.P., Thos. Jamieson, W. H. Bruton, Geo. Rolliston, Rev. Cruickshanks, Rev. Caleb Parker, and Rev. Dr. Crothers.

Committed to Gaol.

The trial of Agnes Lyn, (Duck) Hattie Smith, Ida May Storms, and Mary Carr, took place before Police Magistrate Daly at the town hall on Friday last. Duck Lyn was found guilty of being the keeper of a disorderly house and will spend 90 days in gaol. Hattie Smith and Ida May Storms, for being frequenters of the same, and using obscene language or of the street, were each sentenced to 60 days in gaol. Mary Carr, a 13-year old frequenter, whose mother is unable to control her, was sent to the Mercer Reformatory for two years. Mary can neither read nor write; on her return she may be able to do both. W. Sills, and Jas. Rogers two Deseronto youths, who were found in the house with Mary Carr when it was raided by Mr. Wesley Huff, gave evidence and the Magistrate remanded them until yesterday. Jas. Losee, another Deseronto boy, who failed to appear for trial, was arrested at his home in Deseronto on Monday and brought to Napanee.

A meeting of the Board of Education was held at the council chambers on Tuesday, all the members present except Mr. Alex Henry, H. M. Deroche, Q.C., presiding.

On motion the matter of the Kindergarten, in reference to the use of the school room, and the question of fuel, etc., was referred to the Committee on Teachers to investigate and report.

On motion Mr. Jno. F. Venevrey, Peterboro, was engaged temporarily until the Xmas vacation at the rate of $700 per year.

On motion J. R. Street, Clark University, Massachusetts was engaged as teacher of Moderns at a salary of $1,000 per year, services to commence on the 1st of Jan. 1898.

Mr. Street was unable to enter upon the duties at present.

The Property Committee was instructed to procure a clock for West Ward School.

A telegram was read from a friend of Ex-Chief Rankin, of Cobourg, stating that Rankin was out of town, but would wire the council on his return.

H. Good, of Queenston, J. R. Chisman, Toronto Junction, and Jos. Walker, a car builder, whose time was so taken up that he could hardly spare time to write, all sent in applications.

S. E. Perry, Napanee, put in a verbal application, at $475 per annum.

On motion of Madole and Dey a committee composed of the Mayor, Reeve Leonard, Coun. Aylsworth was appointed to confer with the Police Committee and consider the applications and references and report at a special meeting of the council on Wednesday night next.

A few minor matters were disposed of.

The council decided to grant Ben Johnston, who is ill with fever in the Kingston hospital, $3 per week for the services of his horse and cart, which is being used upon the streets.

Quite a little breeze arose over the question of building a permanent walk around Mr. Dennis Daly's residence. Mr. Daly offered to pay two thirds the cost of constructing the walk if it was built 4 1/2 feet wide on Dundas street and 4 feet wide on the side streets. The council at a previous meeting decided that 4 feet was wide enough and as this was tantamount to a rejection of Mr. Daly's proposition a motion to re-consider was moved.

Coun. S. R. Miller rose to enquire the width of the walk on Bridge St. in front of Messrs. Dafoe and F. W. Smith's residences. He was informed that it was 4 1/2 feet wide.

At the regular meeting a motion was passed that the walk should be only 4 feet wide and Coun. Miller wanted to know why the chairman of the Street Committee had exceeded his instructions.

Mr. Miller referred to the uselessness of the council passing motions if the members would not abide by them.

Reeve Leonard explained that he had intended to build the walk 4 feet wide as instructed but that Messrs. Smith and Dafoe would not hear to it, stating that if the council wouldn't pay the $1.50 involved in making the walk six inches wider they would. On this assurance he had built the walk 4 feet 6 inches wide.

This didn't satisfy Coun. Miller and Deputy-Reeve Madole. sprang to the defence of the chairman of streets. He didn't like these taunts, as they were unfair to the chairman of the Street Committee who was one of the most conscientious men on the board. Mr. Madole made a reference to Coun. Miller's conduct being ungentlemanly.

Coun. Miller retorted that his conduct was just as gentlemanly as Mr. Madole's, and that wasn't saying a great deal.

Reeve Leonard said that the taunts referred to didn't annoy him in the least. It was simply a case of harass and it was unnecessary for Mr. Madole to come to his defence. He asked that Mr. Smith be heard in reference to the matter.

Mr. F. W. Smith said that when a walk along East Street was first promulgated he favored a four foot walk. However a four and a half foot walk had been put down and when it was decided to build a walk on Bridge Street, a thoroughfare, he went for a 4 1/2 foot walk and would consent to nothing else. He had assured Reeve Leonard that if the council would not pay their share of the extra six inches he would. If the walk had been built four feet wide and joining a four foot and a half walk on East Street it would have been a miserable job. This was a permanent walk they were putting down, and when he gave town $33 to assist in putting a permanent walk down at a cost of 1 1/2 cents a square foot more than they could put a board walk down for, his wishes should be consulted. When councillors demurred about a paltry dollar or so on the cost of a permanent walk they were not conserving the interest of the ratepayers.

After a good deal of discussion, pro and con, the proposition to build the Daly walk 4 1/2 feet wide was defeated.

Other minor matters were disposed of and council adjourned.

election. Mr. Wilson declared he was opposed to bonuses. In closing his address Mr. Wilson said there was one motto on the walls which appealed to him, viz., "A British Subject I was born and a British Subject I will die."

Dr. Willoughby said he was pleased to be present as his face indicated. People had to discuss and look at public questions. We had a government in power who looked upon the people as their servants and treated them as such. He wanted them to consider the question free of bias. He was a strong party man; he was so from conviction. All the years they were in opposition the Conservatives had been acting in the interests of the people. The present government came into power under rosy circumstances. They came in with four millions of a surplus, and had spent this and twenty eight millions in addition received from sale of timber limits. The Government have no surplus to day and never had one of their own making. On the contrary the Province was in debt. The opposition had been urging the Government to spare the trees. A wrong had been done the Province by allowing Americans to come over and remove our timber. The speaker then turned his attention to Premier Hardy. During his short term he he had weakened the government and he was satisfied Hardy couldn't carry Ontario. Dr. Willoughby also attacked Mr. Tarte. Tarte had a peculiar penchant for bribery and not being able to exercise it in the Conservative ranks had joined the Grits. Mr. Hardy had given Mr. Tarte a character. What was Mr. Hardy's character? He was called the wicked partner of the combination, Mr. Mowat was the christian politician. Hardy engineered the crooked transactions in the past. The speaker then read a clipping from a French radical paper which said Tarte should be consigned to the devil. They didn't want the help of the Dominion Conservatives as they didn't need them. The speaker then turned his attention to Mr. G. W. Ross. He was a clever man but no greater autocrat ever came into the Province of Ontario. It was a public calamity that Mr. Ross had been made Minister of Education. In that position Mr. Ross had crushed all individuality out of all the school teachers of Ontario. They had to be subservient to him if they hoped for preferment. There was an incipient battle among the teachers of Ontario and all would be pleased to see Ross go. The speaker here modified his attack by saying he was proud of the school system of Ontario. Referring to the examinations, which are held in Toronto, he said the examinations were conducted with dilatoriness. The Board of Examiners were generally friends of the government. The system of examination in Ontario is nothing but a hot bed. The pupils get culture. The Agricultural College is very expensive and if he were to judge by its usefulness he would say it ought to be wiped out. The experimental farm had been run at a loss. Mr. Dryden was an incompetent minister. "The other departments didn't amount to much," said the speaker. Referring to the Public Accounts Committee he said the Patrons had joined hands with the government from the start.

Mr. W. D. Madden, on behalf of the association, read an address to Mr. Whitney. The address was signed by the following gentlemen: R. A. Fowler, U. M. Wilson, W. G. Wilson, chairman of the Demonstration Committee.

Mr. Whitney, on rising was greeted with cheers. He thanked them for the address. He would deal with the political features contained therein in his address. He paid a tribute to Dr. Meacham and Urish Wilson. He thanked them for the magnificent demonstration and said it was an indication of the way the people were worked up against the mal-administration of the government. Mr. Whitney turned his attention to the mining lands of Ontario. He here discussed the Engleclue syndicate and condemned the government for what he termed this outrageous act. The syndicate paid $20,000 for the mining land in question for the privilege of prospecting it. The first year they were called upon to expend $30,000 in development, $40,000 the second, $50,000 the third, but this was no hardship as the syndicate had to spend money to make the land of any value to them. Granting the Engleclue Co. this land was nothing more than a steal. The speaker entered into a comparison of the legislation involved on the Dominion and Provincial Governments. The Provincial Government legislated on property. He announced himself as a follower of Sir John A. Macdonald, and paid a high tribute to the dead statesman. Sir John, he said, died at the close of his great and successful struggle fought against domestic traitors and foreign enemies. Mr. Whitney after disavowing any connection with Tupper, entered into a consideration of the finances of the Province and predicted the rapid approach of direct taxation. Mr. Whitney said responsible Government was only secured by political parties—it can't be got by one party and is impossible with three or four. Mr. Whitney said the Government had no surplus. The government claimed a surplus of assets over liabilities presently payable of four millions and seven hundred thousand dollars. The speaker criticized the educational policy of the Government. He was a defender of the High School system, but it was not today what it was. It is today simply a gigantic mould out of which is pressed candidates for school teachers. It had been deflected from its original purposes. In the public schools of Ontario ninety-five per cent of our children get all the education they will ever receive. A larger amount of education should be obtained in those schools. A council should be formed upon which all the teachers and professors in the province should find a place. The license question was then taken up. The administration of the license law had been dragged in the mire by that man who had dared to call himself a christian politician. Hotel keepers were squeezed by the Ontario Government. The question of prohibition was somewhere in the air like Andre's balloon. Some had said there was to be a plebiscite. He didn't know. Mr. Whitney condemned the New License Law. On Temperance question Mr. Whitney was in Torres Vedras. He asked them to believe the Government guilty of the mal-administration of which they had accused them and take himself and party on trust.

The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen and Mr. Whitney.

The Dominion Bank Robbery.

The detectives engaged on the Dominion Bank robbery are now believed to be on the track of the burglars. During July and August four men, with no ostensible means of support, were camped upon Hawley's Point, on the Napanee river, about a mile from town. They kept to themselves and their presence was a subject of comment to the residents of that neighborhood. About dark every evening they would leave the point and proceed in the direction of Napanee. Weeks before the robbery, conjecture was rife as to the character of the men. A few weeks previous to the cracking of the Dominion Bank the residence of Mr. F. W. Morris was entered and money, plate, and jewelry carried off. A few days after this incident a county constable visited the headquarters of the much talked of quartette and gathered in two of the gang, the other members not being in sight. They were brought before Police Magistrate Daly and being unable to satisfy him as to their ability to maintain themselves honestly while remaining in idleness he gave them one hour in which to leave town. One of the pair had in his possession several bundles of coppers done up in paper after the fashion employed in banks. A few days after the tramps had been before the magistrate the Dominion Bank was entered and robbed of $32,000. It is now believed that the four men in question are the artists who performed the work. It is said that they gained an entrance through the partition at the rear of the building over two months ago. They acquainted themselves with the movements of the clerks and each evening entered the bank and worked on the combination. The locks on the vault were soon mastered, the first night affording ample time it is alleged, the burglars then applied themselves to the more difficult task of working out the combination of the safe. Just here the connection between the bundles of coppers found upon the member of the suspected gang when arrested previous to the robbery is established. It is the custom of the bank to do the coppers up in parcels, and at stated intervals they are summed up. The coppers are kept in the vault and no particular attention is paid to them. When the robbers gained access to the vault they took several packages of coppers to satisfy their wants, and the loss was not noticed. It is believed that the burglars were fully six weeks working out the combination on the safe. The apparent leader of the gang was over six feet in height. He had iron grey hair, clear cut features and was apparently about 40 years of age. He wore a cheap navy blue suit and a black fedora hat. In the raid upon the bank the robbers carried off $32,000, including $10,000 in unsigned $10 notes and $2,125 in gold. A few days ago one of these unsigned notes turned up in the Montreal branch of the Bank of Commerce, and the cashier at once notified Provincial Detective Greer, who has the case in hand. That officer immediately went to Montreal, and is now busy trying to trace the note, with good hopes of its leading him to a solution of the mystery. Prior to the discovery of this bill the authorities had no exact knowledge of the number of the notes, but now they hope to be able to figure out this important detail, and if successful their prospects of ultimate success will be considerably brightened. The detectives are at a loss to know how this information became public property.

Detective Wilks, the Pinkerton man, is devoting his time to Napanee and vicinity. The combination of the vault was supposed to have been known only to W. H. Green, the junior clerk, and W. H. Ponton, the cashier, while the secret of the combination on the safe holding the money rested with manager Baines and Mr. Durand, the ledger-keeper. The latter was off on his holidays, being up in Eglington when the robbery occurred, and heard of the affair first through the newspapers.
